FLOOD COTTON MARKET

The announcement that the Farm Board will sell, beginning in August, one half of the 1,300,000 bales of cotton in its possession, means as certainly as it can mean anything that cotton must go still lower.

The cotton now held by the board was bought in 1929 at around 16 cents per pound. Today it is selling at approximately 5 cents per pound—a loss of $45 per bale, or a total of sixty million dollars. In view of the present price, it may be wondered if the scheme has profited the cotton growers as much as it has cost the nation. Certain it is that the benefit was only temporary, since the promised sale of the vast holdings will inevitably seriously affect the price which is now being planted. If anything has been made clear by the plan, it is that artificial respiration of the cotton market by the Farm Board will not give it permanent life. The vast amount of money spent in the attempt is a deficit upon the nation which must be made up from other sources. If the cotton farming sections are not required to replace at least a large part of that deficit, we shall be surprised.

When T. T. Sorenson, of Marshfield, Ore., heard the cries of a drowning person, he leaped into Coos Bay and rescued a boy who proved to be his own son.

RATHER STAY DRUNK
When Mayor Renfro made a proposition to a defendant in mayor's court Monday morning to assist him in remaining sober, the mayor did not fully comprehend the workings of the man's mind. He did not realize that the man would prefer to stay drunk.

And that is the reason for most of the drunkenness which exists in spite of present legal efforts to lessen drunkenness. What men are determined to do, it is difficult to prevent them from doing.

Many years ago we knew an old gentleman in Savannah who habitually fell off the water wagon in his family were prominent people and had excellent church connections. The pastor of the church approached the old gentleman with a proposition to assist him through the Keely cure. The pastor explained that the cost, approximately $500, would be paid in his church. The old man opened his eyes in amazement. "What! Five hundred dollars! Why, man, I wouldn't be cured for twice that much!"

Mayor Renfro didn't realize that the privilege to get drunk is a sacred one which many men will not lightly lay aside. Few men there be who really desire assistance in remaining sober!

Four youths were fined a total of $248.60 in Manistee, Mich., for singing "Sweet Adeline" on a street corner in the early morning.

"KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON"
When Eugene Talmadge replied to "Hell Bent" Edwards' challenge for a joint debate in the race for governor with the words which head this article, "Keep your shirt on," he announced a platform which is worthy to be shouted at the people all over the state of Georgia.

Eugene Talmadge was probably actuated by a spirit of conceit, which makes him feel that "Hell Bent" is not worthy to be noticed in the contest. As to that, we believe he is right. If Mr. Edwards entertains a proper estimate of Talmadge's real bigness, he sizes him up exactly in the same way. If there are two smaller men in Georgia public life, we should have to see them in charge of the state's affairs.

Eugene Talmadge was not elected because the people believed in his bigness, but because they had been convinced of the littleness of J. J. Brown, his predecessor. The later attempts of Brown to come back, and Talmadge's second triumph over him, has probably confirmed his overestimate of his greatness.

With four or five avowed candidates already in the race, including both Talmadge and Edwards, there is yet very little to make the people of Georgia tear their shirts. There may be in the contest some who are as capable as we are accustomed to—that is easy to believe—but none are yet conspicuous enough to stand out in the horizon. There is plenty of time for developments, and after the entries have closed on June 3rd, if all those now threatening to run do so, it will be time to tear off shirts.

MAYOR GETS WEALTH AND TROUBLES COME

They Struck Oil on Mother's Farm in Texas.

New York.—J. Malcolm Crim, mayor of Kilgore, Texas, settled himself into an easy chair at the Hotel New York and delivered himself of a lecture on the futurity of being wealthy. "I'm having fun," he said, "while I'm in New York. But it won't last long. You can't enjoy yourself when you get rich. Look at me!"

Crim, in his own words, was "just a poor country boy" until December, 1930, when they struck oil on his mother's farm. Now he has so much money that he can't keep track of it. Crim explained that he doesn't handle his money for publicity.

"One day they sent a picture of me in the papers after the well came in," he said, "and I'm still getting letters. Every mortgage in the world was being foreclosed. People wrote me even from Russia that their mortgages were given foreclosed and would I please give them a little dough."

His benefactor-in-law, Mrs. Byron Scarborough, 1196 Francis St., Atlanta, Ga.

Crim was elected mayor of Kilgore a year ago when the town was incorporated. Prior to his acquisition of wealth he ran a general store.

"I sold everything," he said, "from cradles to coffins." "I never went in for politics," he explained. "I never even heard of this fellow Garner till lately. But I took the job as mayor because the town was getting overrun with the wrong kind of people. I took a census in January and there were 800 people in town. I took another one in March and there were 15,000 people there."

"We didn't have any streets worth mentioning, no water, no sewer system, no nothing. Some of the streets were so bad a snake couldn't crawl on them."

Use Church for Jail.
Crim said he hasn't erected any public buildings in Kilgore "except a church."

"We used the Baptist church for a jail," he said. "Then we got a little jail built and they used the church for a dance hall. Finally some fellow came into town one Sunday and set fire to our two churches. Burnt 'em down. So that made me mad. I built a Presbyterian church to get even."

Since he became wealthy, Crim said, he has been kept so busy he hasn't had a chance to enjoy life. "It used to be," he said, "that I could take a vacation. Now I can't. I'm waiting here now for Mrs. Crim. She's coming in today from a Mediterranean cruise. I couldn't go because I was too busy."

Air Force Figures
Worry to Britain
London.—British aeronautical authorities are much concerned over Great Britain's increasingly inferior position of its air corps, as revealed by armament statistics, which most of the nations have submitted to the League of Nations for consideration.

A study of these statistics shows that Great Britain is now fifth in numerical air strength and is rapidly being overhauled, even by Yugoslavia.

Statistics submitted to the league by the various nations show their relative strength in first line aircraft and their total strength with all reserves as follows:

First line aircraft. Total reserves.

France.....1,457 2,500
Great Britain.....706 1,424
Italy.....1,007 2,067
Poland.....700 700
Czechoslovakia.....546 637
Spain.....465 440
Yugoslavia.....637 924
Romania.....759 759
U. S. of America.....1,782 3,361
Japan.....1,347 3,938

It is believed, however, that Great Britain's numerical inferiority is considerably offset by the exceptionally high standard of her air force personnel and the superiority of her types of present planes to those of most of the other nations.

Peon Class of Mexico
Has New Independence
Los Angeles.—Recent political activities in Mexico have resulted in new political independence to the laboring classes. Dr. James H. Patton, director of the Inter-American foundation, who was a recent visitor here, declared, "The revolution in Mexico," he said, "has brought a new-found independence to the laboring class of the country and is the beginning of a movement which finally will result in true democracy and a republican form of government."

College Day Romances
Prove Most Binding
Granville, Ohio.—Romances between boys and girls of Denison university find couples far more securely than those in the great "outside" world, according to compiled records. Out of 380 campus marriages at the school have come only five divorces. It is an average of one marriage failure to each 76 weddings. The national average is one failure for each five or six marriages.

Pulls Out Shirt; Dies
New York.—When Frank Collins, forty-four, pulled a shirt from his dresser drawer, it accidentally fixed a revolver beneath. The bullet penetrated his forehead, killing him.

THE HOUSE FLY—
Never wipes its feet. Therefore brings filth to your food and to you. This filth is loaded with germs. These germs communicate disease to you. On the body of a single fly 6,000 germs have been found. A few flies in spring will multiply to many million in summer. Flies live in dirt, filth and manure—therefore, no filth, no flies.

Presbyterian Church
Our church and community are in the midst of one of the greatest privileges of recent years. Beginning Monday night and continuing through Friday night a series of services which touched the college life and the business life have been in progress. Dr. S. McP. Glasgow, pastor of the Independent Presbyterian church of Savannah, has been leading these meetings, speaking morning, noon and night, to the great joy and edification of his hearers. FLIES DANGEROUS ENEMY OF MANKIND
RATE OF PROPAGATION CALLS FOR VIGILANCE IF THEY ARE TO BE DESTROYED.
Flies survive the winter by hibernation, hence the importance of killing those appearing in the early spring. Approximately 85 of every 100 flies found in houses are house flies. Next in number is the lesser house fly. In some country houses the stable fly may occur in large numbers. It has been charged with spreading infantile paralysis, but this is at least unproved. Blow-flies (blue bottle) and green bottle flies may also be found. These have a peculiar interest from the fact that their eggs may hatch with extreme rapidity. There are many biting and blood-sucking flies of the same type of parasites. Flies have many horse flies and cow flies, some of which are known to carry disease, such as anthrax. In Africa another genus of flies is known to carry sleeping sickness, a human disease, and a number of animal diseases due to the same type of parasites. The multiplication of flies is best prevented by seeing that places and materials suitable for the deposit and hatching of eggs are not provided. Horse manure especially should be kept in fly-tight concrete bins. Rapid drying of manure will also prevent hatching of eggs and development of larvae. Destruction by burning is used in armies but is wasteful. Remembering the time required for development, it is evident that removal of manure followed by deep burial, drying or other treatment once a week will prevent the breeding of flies. The same principles apply to other organic waste in which flies breed. Destruction of adult flies by swatting, trapping, sticky paper and poison must be vigorously carried on. All dwelling houses must be fitted with wire screens, and it is well to have them stained and treated with animal houses. Cleanliness is the watchword. Poisons containing arsenic are dangerous to use, especially if there are children. Among poisons which are safe and efficient are salt-cylate of soda, arsenic and formalin. In the case of formalin, the school has either a pint of sweetened water. Both castor and croton oil are excellent fly poisons. Very stale milk and decomposing meat and blood are attractive baits to use as the poison conveyor.

OGEECHEE NEWS

The athletic events will include broad jumping, high jumping, pole vaulting and races of all kinds. The school has been divided into Hornets and Huskies, and already there is much competition between the two groups as they are practicing for the events on Friday. An old-song tableau, emphasizing health by means of familiar songs and readings, will be given when the athletic events are completed. Later in the afternoon will be the pageant, with dances, the plating of the May pole and finally the crowning of the queen of the occasion. FLIES DANGEROUS ENEMY OF MANKIND
RATE OF PROPAGATION CALLS FOR VIGILANCE IF THEY ARE TO BE DESTROYED.

Flies survive the winter by hibernation, hence the importance of killing those appearing in the early spring. Approximately 85 of every 100 flies found in houses are house flies. Next in number is the lesser house fly. In some country houses the stable fly may occur in large numbers. It has been charged with spreading infantile paralysis, but this is at least unproved. Blow-flies (blue bottle) and green bottle flies may also be found. These have a peculiar interest from the fact that their eggs may hatch with extreme rapidity. There are many biting and blood-sucking flies of the same type of parasites. Flies have many horse flies and cow flies, some of which are known to carry disease, such as anthrax. In Africa another genus of flies is known to carry sleeping sickness, a human disease, and a number of animal diseases due to the same type of parasites. The multiplication of flies is best prevented by seeing that places and materials suitable for the deposit and hatching of eggs are not provided. Horse manure especially should be kept in fly-tight concrete bins. Rapid drying of manure will also prevent hatching of eggs and development of larvae. Destruction by burning is used in armies but is wasteful. Remembering the time required for development, it is evident that removal of manure followed by deep burial, drying or other treatment once a week will prevent the breeding of flies. The same principles apply to other organic waste in which flies breed. Destruction of adult flies by swatting, trapping, sticky paper and poison must be vigorously carried on. All dwelling houses must be fitted with wire screens, and it is well to have them stained and treated with animal houses. Cleanliness is the watchword. Poisons containing arsenic are dangerous to use, especially if there are children. Among poisons which are safe and efficient are salt-cylate of soda, arsenic and formalin. In the case of formalin, the school has either a pint of sweetened water. Both castor and croton oil are excellent fly poisons. Very stale milk and decomposing meat and blood are attractive baits to use as the poison conveyor.
